Assalamualaikum Warahmatullahi Wabarakatuh! This past week, our young adventurers set off on a journey that spanned centuries, continents, and cultures, all under this week's theme of Islamic history! Through various activities, projects, and class lessons, campers learned about the incredible contributions of Muslims to various realms, from science to art and beyond! They dived into the stories of prophets, understanding the significance of these narratives in shaping not only Islamic tradition but also the broader human experience.

Our campers explored their creativity and revisited their knowledge of Islamic history by participating in the door decorating contest! The judges awarded the first, second, and third places as each class beautifully decorated their respective doors. On Thursday, our campers created unforgettable memories they experienced our annual camp water fight at Neilson Park. Friday was a day of spiritual growth and friendly competition at our camp. We organized a Quran memorization and Nazirah competition for every age group. It was heartwarming to witness campers of all ages participating and showcasing their dedication to the Quran. The event was a true testament to our commitment to nurturing both the mind and the soul.

Week 7 was a celebration of connections—connecting with the past, connecting with the Quran, and connecting with each other. Through various activities like the water fight, door decorations, and competitions, campers came together, laughed, and learned in unison. These interactions served as a reminder that our camp is more than a place; it's a community where connections are built that can last a lifetime.
